

Pet Medications that You Can Have Delivered to You

When your pet gets sick, you usually get your pet's prescription filled at your veterinarian's office when you get your dog or cat in to be seen by their vet. However, that means you pay not only what your vet does for the medication, but you pay for their mark-up on the drug as well. You can't fault them for making a buck, you don't have to pay more for a product or medication that you need to either.

Of course, you're not going to find a pet pharmacy on your corner, but you can find one online to order your pet medications from. The Pet Pharmacist is a website where you can find most of the medications and supplies you need to keep your pet healthier. Whatever your needs are, from wormers to flea and tick medicine to antibiotics, they carry what you need.

As long as the pharmacy can verify the prescription is from a veterinarian, they will fill it and deliver to your home either by sending it through the mail or delivering it from their facility to your doorstep by truck. They deliver anywhere throughout Canada and carry over 10,000 products for your convenience. Orders are taken online or you can call them directly to place your order. Once they verify the medication with your vet, it will be sent out to you.

The online pet pharmacy also helps other pets by donating a portion of their sales to organizations that shelter, rescue or help animals in other ways. For every prescription they sell, $1 is donated to an organization chosen by the customer or if an over the counter product is purchased, 2.5% of its pre-taxed value is donated. Helping animals is their business, no matter who the animal belongs too.

However, in order to receive their donations, the organization chosen has to be authorized to issue income tax receipts in Canada. There are other stipulations for the donated money, click here to find out what they are.
